MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev declared Wednesday that if Cuba, Red China, or any other Communist nation is attacked, "the Soviet Union will come to the assistance of its friends and strike a devastating blow at the aggressors."

Khrushchev's speech to an election rally in the Kremlin came against a background of renewed Red Chinese attacks on his policy and a Peking demand for an apology for the Soviet attitude in their ideological dispute.

Khrushchev defended his peaceful coexistence policy, which has been criticized by Red China, as "the only sensible policy," he added:

"If, however, the imperialists

Air Force-CIA Conflict Denied

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate investigators developed Wednesday that the Air Force took over photographic reconnaissance of Cuba just before the missile crisis last fall because of a need for more high-flying U2 planes.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., quoted Maj. Gen. Robert A. Breitweiser, Air Force intelligence officer, as testifying at a closed hearing that, "There was no dispute between the Air Force and the Central Intelligence Agency."

The aerial reconnaissance missions shifted from the CIA to the Air Force about Oct. 12, and two days later an Air Force U2 discovered the Soviet missile sites that led to President Kennedy's declaration of a naval quarantine on Oct. 22.

Stennis heads the Senate Armed Services Preparedness subcommittee which was cloaked with Breitweiser for nearly three hours.

Stennis later dismissed reports that there was a gap in reconnaissance flights from early September until the Air Force took over in October.

Newsweek magazine reported that a conflict between CIA and the Air Force led to a two-week lapse in U2 flights over Cuba.

"I don't think there was a gap when no photos were taken," Stennis said.

"Gen. Breitweiser made it very clear there was the fullest and most complete cooperation between the CIA and Air Force," he said. "It was merely a question of who would fly the U2 planes for the augmentation."

Stennis described Breitweiser as a "very capable intelligence officer who was free and frank in his testimony to us."

He said much of this testimony was highly classified as were reports on the present situation in Cuba.

Stennis said the subcommittee will release as much of the information it gathers as is possible after testimony is screened for military secrets.

High Court Studies Prayer In Schools

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court was told Wednesday that a ban on devotional exercises in public schools would open a Pandora's box of litigation to remove "every vestige of our religious heritage" from public life.

At issue before the high tribunal is constitutionality of Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer at the opening of schools in Maryland and Pennsylvania.

The appeals follow up last year's hotly disputed 6-1 ruling by the tribunal declaring unconstitutional a state-prescribed nondenominational prayer in New York's schools.

Most of the session was devoted to an appeal by a Baltimore mother and her 16-year-old son who describe themselves as atheists.

Their counsel pleaded with the nine justices to strike down a city board rule providing for daily Bible reading and reciting of the prayer. This practice, it was contended, violates the Constitution's First Amendment prohibition against an establishment of religion by government and guarantees of free exercise of religion.

Leonard J. Kerpelman, attorney for Mrs. Madelyn E. Murray, and her son William, said that the youth was spat upon, assaulted and subjected to alcohol by and teacher sanctions because he dared to walk out on religious exercises, as permitted by board rule. The Murphys, Kerpelman said, were entitled to protection from such injury.

Francis B. Burch and George W. Baker Jr., Baltimore city solicitors, said in reply that there is no Constitutional violation so long as there is no compulsion on the student to attend the morning exercise.

In the Pennsylvania case, Philip H. Ward III, representing the Abington School District, said 10 Bible verses are read each school day over a loudspeaker.

The children, he said, are encouraged to read their own Bible. There has been no case, he added, of a child asking to be excused while the verses were read. Therefore, he said, there is no evidence of any compulsion being used.

The children in the appealed case, Ward related, were Unitarian and had testified they were subjected to religious beliefs differing from their own.

Named Commission Chairman: Udall Cites Importance Of Delaware River Basin Plan

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said Wednesday "the worst form of waste in America is the waste of water and it must be stopped."

He made the comment after his unanimous election by the governors of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and Delaware as chairman of the Delaware River Basin Commission. The occasion was the group's second organizational meeting.

Udall, flanked by Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey, Elbert N. Carver of Delaware, Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, described the waste of water as enormous and said bluntly "there are few places in the nation today that don't have a water problem."

Then he added:

"We are wasting water by pollution, like we wasted our forests 75 years ago."

The commission was organized in December, 1961, as a partnership of the states and the federal government to develop into the next century the 12,000-square-mile basin through which the Delaware flows for flood control, anti-pollution, water supply, recreation, soil conservation and hydro-power.

Basically, the commission is supposed to plan projects but Udall suggested "there may be times and situations when (it) may feel that its assumption of direct responsibility would be very much in the public interest." He said successful planning of water use could lead, perhaps, to join regional efforts in other vital community matters.

Succeeds Gov. Lawrence

Udall was named to succeed David L. Lawrence, former governor of Pennsylvania.

Succeeding Udall as vice chairman was Rockefeller, one of the front-runners for next year's Republican presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's name was put forward by Hughes, a Democrat, who said smilingly that in his year as governor of New Jersey he has "learned of bi-partisanship and the virtues of bi-partisanship."

Scranton, also quickly broke in: "Without mention of party, I would like to second the nomination." Then he winked at Rockefeller who was sitting next to him.

Rockefeller and Scranton both lauded the commission in its first year of work.

Praise From Rockefeller

Rockefeller emphasized "the pioneering effort" of the four states and the U.S. to work together "in one of the most significant experiments in pressing the interests of all levels of government."

Scranton, attending his first meeting since he became governor last month, said the commission "can be of tremendous benefit to Pennsylvania in industrial development and through that by producing more jobs."

Udall pointed out that the commission's greatest task is to assure an adequate water supply for the people and for industry.

"We know that there are flood damages to be prevented, or abated, by holding back quick, over-

Andrew J. Sordoni, Area Industrialist, Dead At 76

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Andrew J. Sordoni, industrialist, hotel chain operator and one-time Pennsylvania secretary of commerce, died Wednesday of a heart attack. He was 76.

Sordoni, a native of Naticole, Pa., had suffered from a heart ailment for some while. Nevertheless, from his winter home here, he kept in close touch with his many interests. In the good weather months he lived in Wilkes-Barre or at a resort near that city.

Served As Senator

For 12 years he served as state senator from Pennsylvania's Luzerne County. In 1961, he was named secretary of commerce by the incoming governor of his state, John S. Fine, also a Luzerne County resident.

Two Pennsylvania institutions of higher learning honored this man who started his working life with so little in the way of formal education. In 1950, Bucknell University gave him an honorary Doctor of Laws Degree, and three years later he received a Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Lafayette College.

He is survived by his widow; a son, Andrew Jr., a daughter, Mrs. Mary Seltzer, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements, in the hands of a Wilkes-Barre home, were incomplete.

ran his own power and light company along with the commonwealth telephone company. He branched out into agriculture, acquiring a 3,600-acre dairy farm which became one of the nation's best.

Marek Testifies To Illegal Finance Practices In Co. A Payroll Scandal Implicates Other Principals In Case

Labor Board Rules Against Teamsters

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board ordered the Teamsters Union on Wednesday to cancel trucking industry labor contract clauses which the board found were designed to maintain illegal "hot cargo" agreements.

The five-man board ruled unanimously that Teamsters Union contracts with truckers in 22 states contain provisions so exempting employees from discipline that their employers can be forced to cease doing business with other employers with whom the union may be at odds.

The Teamsters immediately filed notice of appeal in the federal courts here. The union contended the NLRB erred in interpreting the law and said further the law itself is invalid because it exempts several industries.

Long Litigation

Trucking is an industry heavily dependent on cooperative interchange of freight to insure fast, safe delivery. The Teamsters Union has been in and out of the courts for years in behalf of labor contract provisions designed to let the union use pressure to prevent one employer from dealing with another.

The union has been accustomed to putting a "hot cargo" label on goods from firms with which the union has labor controversies. Congress in 1959 passed legislation outlawing labor contract provisions in which the employer commits himself to cease handling, using, selling or transporting products of another employer.

Two separate decisions Wednesday concerned Petton Warehouse, Inc., Columbus, Ohio, and the Teamsters' Central States Drivers Council, covering 14 states, in one case and the Brown Transport Corp., Weymouth, Ga., and the Southern Conference of Teamsters, covering eight states, in another case.

The Patton and Brown firms refused to sign new "protection of

NEW JOB FOR ROCKET BOOSTER — Joseph V. Charyk, Undersecretary of the Air Force, poses at Pentagon desk as the White House announced his appointment as head of the new U. S. Communications Satellite Corporation. (AP Wirephoto)

Businessman, Scientist To Head New Satellite Corp.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The No. 1 man in the new U.S. Communications Satellite Corp. will be a 64-year-old international business expert, Leo D. Welch. The No. 2 job will go to a brilliant Canadian-born space and missile scientist, Dr. Joseph V. Charyk, 42.

The White House announced Wednesday that President Kennedy will nominate both men to the board of directors of the fledgling commercial space venture, opening the way for their selection as its top officials.

Kennedy does not name the chairman and president of the corporation but picks three of the 15 directors. The board elects the officers. But the White House confirmed that Welch, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey since 1957, is to become chairman and chief executive officer, and that Charyk, undersecretary of the Air Force, will become president.

Welch and Charyk will be picked by an interim board organized to get the organization incorporated. Later, a permanent board will be chosen to include six chosen by public stockholders and six by communications industry stockholders along with three presidential nominees.

The salaries of the two jobs have not been decided. But officials familiar with the plan said Welch will receive $125,000 a year and Charyk $80,000—far more than his $10,000 as No. 2 Air Force civilian.

Welch, born in Rochester, N.Y., is a 1919 graduate of the University of Rochester. In that year he joined the National City Bank of New York and was sent to Argentina. He was in charge of National City's Caribbean operation when he joined Standard Oil in 1944. Welch and his wife, who have one daughter, live in New York City.

Goal: 2 Years

The goal is to have the corporation functioning in two years. In cooperation with other countries, it will develop and operate a commercial system of communications satellites for telephone, telegraph, television, photographic and other communication media.

Finances—obviously the province of Welch—will be the next big job. This will involve the sale of stock—at not more than $100 a share—with half going to the general public and half to existing communications companies.

The corporation expects to offer stock before Feb. 28, 1964.

Department Asks Bids On Road Projects

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Highways Department Wednesday called for bids March 29 on highway projects in these counties: Columbia County — Interstate 80, (Keystone Shortway), South Centre and Mifflin townships, from Lime Ridge southeasterly, 1.11 miles, two 24-foot lanes of concrete pavement separated by an earth median, a twin super-structure 19-span bridge will cross the north branch of the Susquehanna River; a twin structure 3-span bridge will cross the Pennsylvania Railroad and a similar pair of bridges will span Legislative Route 1920.

Luzerne — Interstate 80, (Keystone Shortway), Nescopeck, Black Creek and Sugar Loaf townships, from the Columbia County line easterly, 5.39 miles, two 24-foot lanes of concrete highway divided by an earth median, five bridges and a change of the Nescopeck Creek channel.

Luzerne—U.S. Route 309, Kingston and Dallas townships, between Courtland and Dallas boroughs, 4.61 miles, divided concrete highway, concrete retaining wall, three new bridges and extension of five existing structures.

Wayne — Route 247, Mt. Pleasant, Preston and Buckingham townships, between Rock Lake and Lake Como, 4.88 miles, bituminous surface, within existing pavement and correct vertical and horizontal alignment of narrow road extensively by summer resort area traffic.

abundant precipitation from the heavens," he said.

"We know that some streams in the Delaware River Basin must be kept clean and others made clean."

"We know that the march of urban and suburban and industrial progress must not be allowed to jeopardize the basin's rich fish and wildlife resources."

Udall also declared the commission "will employ new techniques that come from research laboratories and from university campuses. By this and other means, the commission will add to the nation's store of experience in the business of river basin development."

James F. Wright, executive director of the commission, said the cost of the watershed development—in programs already in progress—is close to the half million dollar mark.

He said means must be found to raise funds to pay for such items as recreation and water supply which won't come from the federal treasury. He suggested that hydro-electric power — the pumping of water to elevated locations and storing it until power is needed—might be a substantial revenue producer.

Recreation Aspect

"Recreation cannot pay for itself," Wright declared. "While water supply perhaps can carry its own share of the financial load, the additional support of power revenues could be a great boost in providing the impetus we seek as an action agency."

Col. T. H. Settle, chief of the Army Corps of Engineers, Philadelphia District, said much work already has begun in the basin as Congress and the states provide the millions needed for flood control, water conservation and recreation.

Settle, whose office is in charge of making the necessary surveys and plans and then carrying them out, said recreation facilities will be included in all water resources projects.

Implicates Other Principals In Case

(Special to The Daily Record)

SCRANTON — First Sgt. Vincent Marek of Tannersville yesterday implicated Mr. Robert E. Schoonover, 32 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, with an allegedly illegal practice of diverting U. S. Treasury checks intended for National Guardsmen.

Marek told a federal court jury of nine men and three women the practice of forging checks and diverting drafts had been going on for some time and that he (Marek) was one of the main participants.

Marek also said that then Capt. Gerald E. Shanley, Jr., Stroudsburg, knew of the illegal practice of check diversion. Shanley, formerly commanding officer of Co. A, First Battle Group, 108th Infantry, with headquarters in East Stroudsburg, faces criminal charges at a later date.

Called as a government witness after pleading no contest earlier in the week to similar charges as those against Schoonover and Shanley, Marek confessed in open court to forgery and diverting of checks.

He said the practice went back to the days of Co. F and Co. G, which merged in 1959 to become Co. A. Marek admitted he prepared company payroll vouchers which listed the address of Russell O. Frederick as c/o Schoonover, 32 Lackawanna Ave., East Stroudsburg, the defendant.

Forwarded For Payment

The vouchers were forwarded to Indiantown Gap for payment, he testified. The first sergeant, who has been placed on leave status from his full-time post, testified he told Schoonover "I was sending him the checks and he agreed it was all right."

Marek said Schoonover was told to bring the diverted Frederick check for $30.50 to the orderly room where he, Marek, endorsed it. He testified Frederick's forged signature was on the draft when he received it, but did not know who affixed it.

After citing the diverted check, Marek testified he usually took them to a store "to pay bills."

"It was the leg man, I cashed the checks," Marek continued. He described Schoonover as a fellow non-com, once first sergeant of Co. G, while he served in a similar capacity with Co. F before the merger.

Marek said he was familiar with Schoonover's signature. After a defense objection and a sidebar conference, Marek was allowed to testify that, in his opinion, the signature on one of the forged checks was that of Schoonover.

Schoonover allegedly endorsed a check for $28.80 made out to Earl Everett, c/o Schoonover, according to the testimony. Everett left the 108th in May, 1959, because he moved to New Jersey.

Prepared Vouchers

Marek testified Schoonover helped him prepare pay vouchers which allegedly carried the names of those not entitled to drill pay. The first sergeant testified he told Schoonover the Everett check would go to the defendant and "he did not object."

Marek admitted signing the names of payees to many checks and insisted he never tried to conceal what he was doing from Schoonover.

Marek said he cashed some of the diverted checks. Asked if Schoonover knew he was forging names to checks, Marek said, "He saw me signing the checks."

He insisted Schoonover went with him on occasion to have the forged checks cashed.

Marek testified he and Schoonover discussed the "practice" with then Capt. Shanley. It was after the summer encampment of 1959, the witness said, when he and Schoonover talked to Shanley about the practice "getting out of hand."

Marek testified he told Shanley "The men were either going to be here or not here" and that the illegal and irregular practice must stop.

Under cross-examination by Atty. Edwin Krawitz, representing Schoonover, Marek said he and Schoonover "were forced into doing this to pay the bills."

Apoke With Shanley

He apoke of Co. A bills which weren't paid and accounts which were in a bad state of affairs. He said he and Schoonover "laid out cards on the table — this is it" to Shanley.

"We told Capt. Shanley everything was going to be according to Hoyle from now on," Marek continued.

Marek insisted he and Schoonover worked as a team in deciding what men should be marked present and get paid and when men were to be marked present for drills and their checks diverted.

At the close of the day's proceedings, Marek testified Lt. Richard Rugg of the unit was sent a diverted check. After he told Rugg of the check deal, Marek said, "I'd be stupid to send a check to anyone who didn't know the operation and didn't say yes."

Other witnesses included Capt. Jose Noguera of the finance office at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation; John Marascano, Russell O. Frederick, one of the payees whose checks were involved; Arthur J. Goodman, proprietor of Goodie's Army and Navy Store, where Co. A had an account, and Earl Everett, whose checks also were involved.

Agents On Hand

Three Secret Service agents were in court prepared to testify before Asst. U. S. Atty. Carlton M. O'Malley, Jr., rests the case for the government.

They are James Burke, formerly head of the Scranton office and now Secret Service chief in Detroit, Mich.; William McClarin, special agent assigned to Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, formerly of Dunmore and the Scranton Secret Service office, and Arnold Lau.

POWER FOR CRUISES

"NOW IS MY soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour..." John 12:27.

Christ was facing betrayal, the agony of Gethsemane, and suffering upon Golgotha's tree.

Throughout His ministry Jesus had been doing the Father's will. In doing so He had not by-passed hardships and privations. God would use Him to show other men that when life does its worst to us, God is still God and can be trusted without being completely understood. "Now is my soul troubled," says Jesus, "and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour."

When life for any of us seems to be a dead-end street, when life goes to pieces and becomes shattered because of our human frailty, when a great strain approaches which we know is unavoidable and will test us utterly, what shall we say? "God, spare me this trouble, this crisis, this agony." "Don't let this awful thing happen to me." "Why must I suffer so?" Such petitions or prayers would not be in keeping with the spirit to be found in Jesus' prayer life.

Through prayer and communion with the Father God, Jesus Christ became obedient to the death of the cross. Our Lord made the decision to meet the great crisis He had come into the world to meet.

In such a submissive spirit of trust and prayer we, too, must meet our crises. Jesus plainly indicated that cross-bearing is part of daily discipleship.

Therefore, let's shoulder our cross and follow Him during these sacred forty days of Lent.

When life for any of us seems to be a dead-end street, when life goes to pieces and becomes shattered because of our human frailty, when a great strain approaches which we know is unavoidable and will test us utterly, what shall we say? "God, spare me this trouble, this crisis, this agony." "Don't let this awful thing happen to me." "Why must I suffer so?" Such petitions or prayers would not be in keeping with the spirit to be found in Jesus' prayer life.

THE Daily Record yesterday incorrectly printed that Jess Pearson is the president of the Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association. Warren Rockwell is the current president.

Originally, lent was only 40 hours long. Later it was 30 days, not counting Sundays. Pope Gregory added Ash Wednesday and the remainder of that week to the season.

Ash Wednesday has not fallen on a Feb. 29 since 1900, and the next time it will do so is in the year 2096.

Churches throughout the county are now preparing for Easter, the principal feast in the Christian calendar. From now until Holy

Ash Wednesday Is Observed Throughout County

ASH Wednesday yesterday marked the beginning of Lent — a period of self-denial and contrition — for thousands of Catholics and Protestants throughout Monroe County.

For Catholics, the beginning of the lenten season was marked by the traditional distribution of ashes, rubbed on the forehead in the form of a cross. The ashes are made from last year's palm used on Palm Sunday and are blessed.

Priests marked the season with the intonation of the reminder: "Remember man, that thou art dust, and into dust thou shalt return."

Special services in Protestant churches have been scheduled

No Cold Relief In Sight For Record Temperatures

NO RELIEF is in sight for the record-breaking cold that hovers over the region.

The temperatures toppled to six below zero Tuesday night, and the weather bureau predicts temperatures through Monday to average seven degrees below the normal 31.

Yesterday the high was only 28 in Stroudsburg, and colder in the higher regions.

The forecast also calls for some snow Friday night and another cold night is expected tonight—with the mercury to drop to near zero.

February, departing tonight, at midnight, is certain to go into the record books as one of the coldest since the weather bureau at Avoca was established in 1900.

Dairymen's Problems To Be Discussed

HONESDALE — Problems facing dairymen in the New York-New Jersey milkshed will be discussed at a meeting of area milk producers on Monday from 8 to 10:30 p.m. at Grace Episcopal Church, Honesdale.

According to the Mutual Federation of Independent Co-operators, sponsor of the meeting, topics for discussion will include the threatened loss of markets for Class 3 milk; the need for a more equitable pricing system in the Federal Order 2 marketing area, and the outlook for national dairy legislation in the 88th Congress.

Members of the Mutual Federation staff will present information on these and other topics. The proposed "two-price plan," approved by the MFIC's board of directors, will be explained in detail. Questions will be answered.

Daniel J. Carey, manager of the federation, has described the present dairy situation in the Northeast as "the most critical in the last 25 years." He added that the federation is conducting information meetings for milk producers throughout the entire milkshed.

"All dairymen, regardless of their marketing affiliation, are invited to attend," Mr. Carey said.

The Clock Ticks On

National concern deepens, steadily and inevitably, over the chaotic transportation system. No one element is totally responsible for this urgent problem. But what is probably the primary cause was clearly described by President Kennedy in the transportation message he sent to Congress about a year ago: "A chaotic patchwork of inconsistent and often obsolete legislation and regulation has evolved from a history of specific actions addressed to specific problems of specific industries at specific times. This patchwork does not fully reflect either the dramatic changes in technology of the past half century or the parallel changes in the structure of competition."

"The regulatory commissions are required to make thousands of detailed decisions based on out-of-date standards. The management of the various modes of transportation is subjected to excessive, cumbersome, and time-consuming regulatory supervision that shackles and distorts managerial initiative."

Putting this into informal language, the President said that we have been attempting to regulate advanced modern transportation, of a highly competitive nature, with laws and rules and attitudes that belonged to the gay nineties. The inevitable result has been the present transportation crisis.

In his recent budget message, the President renewed his request for greater reliance on "competitive free enterprise in transportation with less Federal regulation and subsidies. His previous requests got nowhere so far as specific action is concerned. Let us hope, for the sake of the national welfare and security, that this sad story is not repeated in 1963. The clock ticks inexorably on as danger signals multiply.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Kennedys' Tax Program

President Kennedy's insistence that the critics of his tax reduction-tax reform program "are under some obligation to put forward a solution of their own" is not unreasonable. He used blunt language yesterday as he discussed the issue at an economic growth symposium in Washington, sponsored by the American Bankers Association.

The President contends that his tax proposals are required to stimulate the national economy and possibly even to head off a recession. He does not see an expected deficit of about $12 million at the end of the 1963-64 federal fiscal year as the great danger some opponents of his program picture it.

President Kennedy also leveled his fire at those who want only the kind of an income tax cut which will give them the greatest benefit. He told the nation's bankers that a tax program his year should not be decided "by the rule of party politics, public opinion polls and predetermined prejudice."

His frank declaration that he does not consider his proposals to Congress as the last word on this vital question and that he is open to constructive suggestions from his critics imposes a responsibility on the latter to recommend something better if they can.

The cross currents of opposition now buffeting the President's program are somewhat puzzling. Such widely separated giants as the AFL-CIO and the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. are both vigorous advocates of a substantial tax reduction. With this kind of support, it appears almost certain that Congress will vote some kind of a cut this year, with or without the tax law reforms urged by the President. Labor and business seem to have a common goal; the controversy is over the means of reaching it. President Kennedy's willingness to listen to reasonable alternatives should prompt all concerned to strive to resolve their differences.

Spread Of Savagery

Reading through a mass of manuscripts last week as one of the judges for sports editor Irving Marshall's annual selection of the "Best Sports Stories of the Year," I was struck by a single ugly theme that kept recurring. The theme was that of the growth of a shameful spirit of savagery in our sports contests.

It wasn't merely a matter of the prizefight game, though there were a number of stories bearing on the merciless clobbering that resulted in the death of the Cuban boxer, Benny Parot.

The growth of a vicious, calculated spirit of savagery, often with intent to maim, evidently is being extended to base ball, the race track, and even to college football. For the first time in years certain of the stories submitted in Mr. Marshall's contest made for some disheartening and dismaying reading.

The evidence of collegiate football mayhem involving boys who are supposed to play for the fun of the game was probably the most frightening thing to contemplate. Some of the coaches complain about the growth of the "hard-nosed" spirit in football, but there are others, apparently, who deliberately encourage it.

The result is the tackle deliberately intended not merely to bring the ball carrier down but to maim him and put him out of the game. Films of games have shown tacklers senselessly veering off course to land on ball carriers who are already lying flat on their backs out of bounds, sometimes with an elbow planted in the relaxed carrier's face with force enough to shatter the cheekbone.

The growth of such wholly unnecessary tackling, though it is excused by coaches as the product of "over-excitement," has been too steady to be regarded as accidental.

Obviously it is the result of "hard-nosed" doctrine which does not frown upon the use of such tactics as the "bull block," the trade name for using the new plastic helmet as a battering ram.

In professional baseball the spirit of savagery is evidently being cultivated by managers and even club owners who know that the way to pull down a front-running winner is to maim a couple of stars. The "duster derby" has, according to some umpires, become a common thing, with the managers of two feuding teams instructing pitchers to become "head-bunters" as a matter of deliberate policy.

First baseman Ernie Banks of Chicago has openly accused the San Francisco Giants of attempting to put him out of baseball for good. Players speak of the "shooting gallery era" in baseball. The umpires, who know what is going on, slap $30 fines on recognized spot control pitchers who suddenly go wild and can't seem to put the ball any place but just in back of the batter's head.

As Dizzy Dean, the old-time St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, explains it, "the best batter is aimed like you lead a duck, only backward." The "duck" dives back, right into the pitcher.

The managers excuse themselves for ordering the bean ball on grounds that they must retaliate in order to "protect" their own players. But the "retaliation" never seems to end. Feuds are created, and one of these days a batter is going to be killed in spite of his protective helmet.

Among the race track stories submitted in Mr. Marshall's contest there was the one about the Panamanian jockey, Carlos Manuel de Youza. A polite, orderly fellow when he is not on a horse, Youza has been suspended for a total of 403 racing days since his track debut in 1955.

Youza has gone down in several pile-ups that might have killed him or someone else, and has had suspensions for roughness that have cost him an estimated $150,000 in fees.

Roughness, of course, is a by-product of the will-to-win, which is not a deplorable thing in itself. But when a spirit of calculated ferocity that is careless of life and limb spreads from sport to sport, it may be evidence that something evil is happening to a whole civilization.

The progressive brutalization of the sports world may be a reflex of a wider consciousness, and hence not something that can be cured by delivering lectures to a few football coaches and baseball managers. But the sports stories make it plain that something nasty is going on, and it is time for a spirit of revolution to take hold.

The Pennsylvania Story

Rumblings On Capitol Hill

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — For the first time in many a legislative moon disgruntled rumblings over Pennsylvania's slow and oftentimes painfully deliberative legislative process are being heard this year — from all people — lawmakers themselves!

Of course not all the 260 members of the House and Senate are squawking — for the most part the under-the-table grumblings are being heard from the healthy brood of first and second year legislators.

Lump the first and second term legislators into one group — and you have a surprising number of the 260!

In the 210-member House of Representatives for example, 75 are in this group of first termers and those just starting their second term. (In the House each term runs for only two years.)

In the 50-member Senate where terms run for four years and where only half the seats are up for filling every two years, eight senators this year are starting their first term. In other words, in the case of the Senate roughly one-third of the members of the upper chamber elected last fall are first-termers.

Biggest rumble though is found in the House membership where 36 of the 75 first and second termers this year began their first term, a healthy swatch by almost any standard.

This means that slightly more than a third of the entire House membership comprises freshmen and second-term lawmakers, which no matter how you look at it is a good size chunk of the entire 210-seat House of Representatives.

It is the size of this "beginner" bloc that has made some of the legislative veterans sit up and take notice, cognizant of the inescapable fact that the bloc could very well upset the best laid plans of mace and men.

What are the newcomers to Pennsylvania's legislative halls disgruntled about?

In the first place a goodly portion of these youngbloods are just that — young bloods, young in age and of the "new breed" era.

They want no part of the conventional fiddle-faddle that has dictated legislative decorum (if it can be properly called that) over the years.

They're not interested in keeping their mouths shut until they've built up some years of seniority under their legislative belts.

They're not concerned with the "seniority principle" that historically has guided memberships and chairmanships on legislative committees.

They're not concerned with bowing and scraping (literally, of course) to their service seniors on either legislative or non-legislative matters.

In a nutshell, they want nothing to do with the freshman dink snuff, the waiting around until they're old men before daring to take the microphone on the floor to vent their feelings.

For the most part they want answers and action — now.

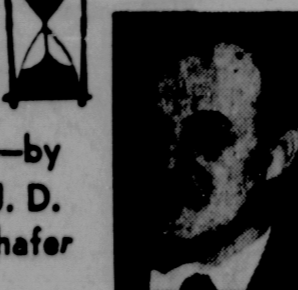

They're fed up with coming to Harrisburg two or three days a week and doing little or nothing.

Curiously, others have felt the same way in the past but for the most part they've been too small in numbers to do anything about it other than holler in a barrel.

This year with a swatch of one and two-termers they have the numbers and their vocal outbursts are beginning to be heard. Legislative patriarchy of yesterday, accustomed to the old hierarchy system, are beginning to quiver.

The "new breed" could very well blister their hides if they ever decided to — a possibility that has given many an old pro pause to fret, and think twice!

This imperishable poetry was very popular in our set some years ago before we learned about Franny and Zoey:

The sun was shining brightly,
And it rained that day all night.

It was summer in the winter,
And the rain was snowing fast,
A barefoot boy with shoes on,
Stood sitting in the grass.

It was evening and the rising sun
Was setting in the West,
And all the fishes in the trees,
Were cuddling in their nests.

Then there was a gay young
Miss,
So old and bent with years,
Upon her face she wore a smile,
Her eyes were filled with tears.

I was coming home from no place,
One day this week last night,
Behind me was a lady in black,
All dressed up in pure white.

She said no word, she spoke no speech,
But all she did was talk,
So standing still, I kept on running,
As fast as I could walk.

When all at once she saw a dead man,
And cried out loud, "It is he."
He raised his lifeless body,
And cried, "My God, it is she."

The organ pealed potatoes,
The choir rendered lard,
The sextette sang the dish rag,
And the frier played his card.

Holy Smoke, the Colonel shouted,
And in the rush he lost his hair,
Now his head resembles Heaven,
For there is no parting there.

The Allen-Scott Report

Bobby Tightens Hold On Party's Purse Strings

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington, February 28 — Attorney General Robert Kennedy has a neat scheme to extend still further his already considerable rule over the Democratic National Committee.

Aim of this new backstage power grab is not only to center all fund-raising activities for Democratic congressional candidates in the national committee, but also to vest it with control over how and for whom these campaign funds will be spent.

In other words, Bobby and the White House would have complete sway over the Democratic party's campaign purse strings.

So far, this stratagem is encountering strenuous dissent.

Senator Warren Magnuson, Wash., new chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, and Representative

Michael Kirwan, Ohio, head of the House Campaign Committee, are emphatically balking. They don't like this inner party maneuver, and are making no bones about it.

They are countering with a demand of their own.

The two campaign leaders want the national committee to double its monthly payments to their committees — with no strings attached on how the money is spent.

Magnuson wants his committee to get $18,500 a month instead of the $10,000 it is now receiving, and Kirwan is insisting on a $5,000 increase to $10,000 monthly. Above all, both demand a completely free hand on how these funds are spent.

They bluntly do not want Bobby and the White House calling the turn on that.

The two veteran law makers have indicated willingness to make one concession — to center fund-raising in the national committee. This formula would bar money-raising affairs, such as lunches, "toss," receptions, etc., by individual members of Congress and their partisans.

Last year, more than 50 of these events were held in Washington, netting from a paltry $100 to thousands.

The Real Boss — Attorney General Kennedy is manipulating the wires at the national committee through Treasurer Richard Maguire, former member of the White House staff who still has a desk and secretary there.

National Chairman John Bailey is largely a figurehead.

The real boss is Maguire, who in turn is "Bobby's man," as he is widely known in inner Democratic circles.

In obvious preparation for next year's crucial presidential and congressional elections, with the seats of 24 Democratic senators at stake, the 37-year-old brother of the President is steadily tightening his grip on the national committee. Directly tied in with that is the backstage move to get the purse strings of the Senate and House campaign committees securely in his hands.

At a secret conference on this with Magnuson and Kirwan, Maguire urged that their committees set up two-year budgets — $600,000 for the Senate and $300,000 for the House. But, on careful examination, this turned out much less alluring than it appeared.

Actually, the two congressional campaign committees would each get only $5,000 and $10,000 a month this year ($120,000 for the Senate and $60,000 for the House), and the remainder next year, with the national committee — meaning Bobby and the White House — deciding which Democrats would be helped with these campaign funds.

With the full backing of top Democratic leaders in Congress, Magnuson and Kirwan flatly rejected this attempted power grab.

For one thing, they pointed out, it would enable the Kennedys to withhold campaign funds from lawmakers who balked at supporting their bills and policies. Also, the suspicion was frankly voiced that the money would be spent mainly for the national ticket and not senators and representatives.

The outcome of this undercurrent party hassle remains to be seen. Insiders are betting that Bobby does not get his hands on the congressional campaign purse strings.

Dr. Johnson says:

Need For Periodic Checkups

By Harry J. Johnson, M.D.

Without realizing it, Joe Goodguy, of whom there are millions equally proud and alert, has just practiced preventive medicine on his auto.

But how about himself? His wife? Are they not precious to each other, to the children? Is not health a possession worthy of care and pride? Won't you feel just as pleased to know, perhaps, that the doctor spotted a few potential rust spots and now that you know about it you will be sure to keep the old body machine in the medical "garage," where it belongs, under a doctor's care?

I am aware that there is a basic flaw in the analogy between the family car and the body machine. Preventive maintenance on a car is relatively simple.

But preventive medicine on the body machine is more difficult. You may be feeling perfectly fit. Nothing seems wrong with you, so why go? What's the point in using all that time and effort and money just to hear the medical practitioner tell you what you know already? Besides, you do have a common sense. You do go to the doctor at the first sign of something wrong. So why go through a lot of ritual that you don't understand and that may be an economic luxury.

I know it is not enough to appeal to common sense alone. But on the basis of nearly two generations of personal experience I can assure you that even the person who is feeling quite well can collect an ample reward for following the sensible practice of a periodic health examination.

It's Sunday morning and the place is the parking spot in front of Mr. Joe Goodguy's home. Joe is out there carefully washing down his car. Then he carefully dries it. Then he rubs a little wax on here and there; just a few spots. Good thing I caught those spots early, says Joe to himself. Might have ended up with some ugly rust. This 'ol buggy got to last another couple of years.

We're referring to Jimmy and Gene Nicolas, owners of the business establishment on Main St., Stroudsburg who pay tribute to schoolboy and collegiate athletes the year around in the Pocono and Slate Belt regions.

Jimmy and Gene have done more than their share of work to help publicize the best in the athlete ranks hereabouts. Weekly they hand out a trophy to the lad who is selected by a panel of non-Brite judges. Over a four-year period more than 130 plaques and trophies have been presented to athletic representatives of East Stroudsburg, Stroud Union, Pocono Mountain, Pleasant Valley, Pen Argyl, Bangor and Roseto Plus X high schools.

A fitting climax to their efforts comes at the end (May) each year. It is then when the Brite Star of the year — one of the weedy winners — is picked.

The list of past winners is a pretty good indication of the quality of athlete. The first year it was Evan (Doc) Reese, East Stroudsburg High, who is now studying to become a doctor. Next came Bill Schoonover, Stroud Union, who is starring for Syracuse University's eleven. Then Dick Wolslayer, Little American center from East Stroudsburg State College. Last May Robert DeGrosso, Plus X tackle who went to Penn State, received the honors.

Who will be the top athlete-scholar this year? Your guess is as good as mine. But the list shows some fine prospects who can qualify for the award.

From here, though, the real Brite stars are Jimmy Gene and the Nicolas family who have opened the door to a little recognition for athletes who otherwise might have gone unnoticed despite good athletic and scholastic efforts.

Dear Abby

Marriage Isn't For School Kids!

DEAR ABBY: I think the parent-planned marriages like they had in the old country years ago should become a custom in this country. Why not let the girls marry at 16 and finish their education in an all-male school? It would save a lot of wear and tear on parents who have a tough time keeping their daughters in line.

asked her for a special occasion — or else stay home? The creepiest boys get wise to this and ask unreasonably early. I realize a girl can't refuse on the grounds that she hopes someone more desirable will ask her. But if she tells the early caller that she "might be out of town" and then shows up with a date, she makes the early caller mad at her. It seems there should be a way out for a girl.

DEAR MRS. C.: Marriage is for mature people — not children. Granted, some in a turn people make a poor choice, but the key to keeping daughters in line is not wedlock. When a girl marries she should be mature enough to make a home for her husband and to rear any children that follow. Mixing school books with milk bottles and bills is for the birds.

ONE GIRL'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If a girl doesn't care to accept a date with a fellow (no matter how he calls her), she should simply say, "I'm sorry, I'm busy." (She could be "busy" at home, cleaning dresser drawers, etc.) The less fibbing a girl does, the better.

DEAR ABBY: Just exactly what is an engagement ring supposed to mean, and how long should an engagement last? I got an engagement ring two years ago Christmas and so far my boy friend has made no plans for our future. When I ask him to help me set a wedding date, he finds a hundred excuses. The main one is that he is in debt. It is no wonder, the way he spends money before he gets it. Should I give him his ring back or wait some more? I am 22 and he is 24.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 335, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to ABBY, Box 335, Beverly Hills, Calif., for Abby's new booklet, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

LONG ENGAGEMENT

DEAR LONG: Before you make that decision, collar your boy friend and ask him what his plans for the future are. If he has none — and doesn't want to make any — it means he is not seriously considering marriage. In which case, return his ring.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please explain why a girl has to accept a date with the first boy who

Reminding the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association that this state no longer is the nation's industrial leader, Scranton added:

"We are locked in combat with outside competition and we can no longer afford to indulge in relatively petty internal differences."

"This fact of life casts a new color on all of the old traditional relationships. From the labor-management bargaining table to the councils of state government, there is a new crying need for men of good will with the vision to see that we carry within ourselves the capacity to destroy or create."

The governor said he did not mean to imply there is no longer room for seeking legitimate self-interests.

However, he said the realities of the competitive world "demand more discretion on the part of all of us."

Scranton said his administration has been preparing a program "to commit the state to total war on unemployment and for economic growth."

Cramming For Examinations Seen As Unfortunate Tool

Final examinations are not too far off. Our expert in the field—he took many in elementary, high school, university and now post-university—notes the best way to prepare for exams.

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

CRAMMING is universally despised as a method of passing tests—yet it is almost universally practiced by those who must pass the tests.

Cramming is an unfortunate trick in the students' bag of tricks, yet most students use it every final exam time.

When finals roll around, in both high schools and colleges, most students find themselves with a mountain of material that has been covered, and must be retained for that test.

So the student secludes himself for a few days, studies hour after hour, and packs his brain full of necessary information.

When the test comes, the student then spews this information back to the teacher and, supposedly, passes the exam. Two weeks later, the student has forgotten the material, and the course has been next to useless.

All educators see the need for constant study, the hour spent with material as it is presented, the constant reviews to cover material already handed out, and the big review at the end of a course.

Let Work Pile Up
But with social schedules, and the burden of the nightly work load, very few students can review past material once or twice a week.

They let the work pile up, and at the end of the term, are faced with a veritable mountain of work and material to be assimilated within a few days.

Are there any ways in which the conscientious student can avoid the big cram at the end of the term?

Two ways are best, according to discussion at an education seminar at Lehigh University recently. The steps to be taken are:

Take complete notes in class. Instead of daydreaming or simply sitting back and being entertained by the instructor, write down everything he says of importance to the course.

Most students will find that the material the instructor talks about in class is the material most likely to be covered on the exams—thus the notebook is a source of condensed review when the end of the term rolls around.

Secondly, when reading assigned material, either underline significant passages in the text or copy the significant passages into a separate notebook.

Thus when the finals come, the student will have a ready reference of condensed material in the form of his notebooks.

The best method of studying for finals so far found is this: about a month before they begin, read over the notes in the class and text notebooks.

Read them each week once a week until the final week. Then read them over again twice that week. The night before your final study them carefully and skim the textbook.

When the student has satisfied himself that he adequately knows the material in his notebooks—which is a condensation of the text and lectures—he can feel safe that he has no fear on the final.

Note Taking
Note-taking is vital to good grades. Notes will save hours of pouring through texts trying to pick out the salient points. By the process of note-taking itself, salient points are selected from lectures and texts by the writer.

Cramming is avoidable, and good notes preclude the last-minute push, the bleary eyes, and the fogged mind on the day of the final.

One further recommendation by educators on the method of studying for a final exam: get a good night's sleep.

After you have finished studying, either go out and forget the grind, or hop right into bed and relax. The next morning quickly skim the notes again, and walk into the examination room with a feeling of confidence rather than the sinking feeling found in the stomachs of so many students who have crammed.

A film, "United Church Women at Work" will be shown.

There will also be a children's service at the Citadel on Friday at 3:30 p.m. at which a film, "The Language of Kimbo" will be shown.

11 WWII Fliers Laid To Rest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eleven World War II airmen were buried Wednesday in a grave on a wintry hillside of Arlington National Cemetery, a long way in space and time from the tropical storm which probably killed them.

The remains of the crewmen who were aboard a B25 bomber that crashed on a New Guinea mountainside in 1944 were found two years ago. They were buried Wednesday with full military honors in the national cemetery, near others who died in World War II.

Precisely how the crash occurred never will be known. There were only two bits of information: A final radio message from the bomber in Feb. 1944 reporting it was turning back because of weather; and the discovery in April 1961 of the wreckage and what the elements had left of the bodies.

In 1938, 19 island colonies banded together into the West Indies Federation.

Reminding the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association that this state no longer is the nation's industrial leader, Scranton added:

Marsh Seeks Re-Election As District Attorney

JAMES R. MARSH, Monroe County district attorney, announced last night he will seek re-election for a second four-year term as Monroe County prosecutor.

Marsh was elected to his first public office as district attorney four years ago. He was born in Stroudsburg and graduated from Stroudsburg High School. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Muhlenberg College and his bachelor of law degree from Monroe County Courts on March 31, 1955. Marsh was subsequently admitted to practice before the Pennsylvania Superior Court as well as the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

He is a member of various civic, fraternal, and social organizations.

Attendance Awards In Roseto

ROSETO — Our Lady of Mount Carmel Sodality of the Roseto Catholic Church met in Don Bosco hall Tuesday night and presented perfect attendance awards for 1962.

Sister Superior Rose offered the sodality prayer and spoke on "Penance During the Lenten Season."

She also led the closing prayer and remembrance of deceased members. Catholic books were discussed at the meeting.

Senate Confirms Securities Head

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Senate was asked yesterday to confirm Gov. Scranton's nomination of Elkins Wetherill as chairman of the state securities commission.

Wetherill, a resident of Plymouth Meeting and chairman of Montgomery County commissioners, was named last week to the $13,000 post in succession to Frank N. Hupp of Pittsburgh, whose term expired.

Kiwanis Club Honors Boy Scouts

BOY SCOUTS were the featured speakers at the Kiwanis Luncheon Meeting yesterday in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Jon Raymond, eagle scout, and scouts Austin Keiser and Jack Kishpaugh, all from Explorer Post 87, spoke to the group.

The topic was the annual program for scouts at the Philmont Scout Ranch in New Mexico. Scouts spend two weeks there at the 127,000-acre ranch.

Costs $180

The cost for each scout is $180, including food and transportation. The scouts told of the activities at the scout facility and the program of events that is set up for the boys.

Bob Kranendonk led the singing with Dick Lindroth at the piano. Chester Miller presided at the meeting, and Lee Stine was the guest of William Vincent.

Get-well cards were sent to A. M. Price, Fred Lee, and Rev. Roger Stimson. Dr. Clarence Dupree was reported recovering at home.

Exemption On Birth Or Death

ELLIS R. Rogers, District Director of Internal Revenue for the Scranton District, explained yesterday that exemptions on Federal income tax returns are never pro-rated because of the birth or death of a dependent during the taxable year.

If a child was born alive at any time during the year, the parent may claim the full $600 exemption, if all other dependency tests are met. This is true, even though the child may have lived only momentarily. It is also true for a child born on the last day of the year.

If a dependent died during the year and all other dependency tests have been met, the full $600 exemption is allowable. For example: A taxpayer's mother died on January 15, 1962. The mother had no income and the taxpayer furnished all her support until the date of death. The taxpayer may claim the full $600 exemption on his 1962 income tax return.

Zellner Leads Way In E-burg Band Festival

By Jim Shafer
Daily Record Reporter

THINGS are really starting to hum in East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School, especially in the school's music department.

Robert Zellner, music director, and 23 of his pupils will soon be participating in the band festival, the first in East Stroudsburg since the early 1940's.

The District Band festival will start March 7 and continue through March 9. It will be held in the auditorium of the East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School.

"The job is a large one and one that can not be a success without the help of many committees that have been working very hard with me," Zellner said.

His job, in regards to the festival, is to see that the 175 students participating in the festival from various schools in the district, is to find housing, feed them during the three-day event, arrange recreation, obtain a guest conductor, and set up clinics for the band members and the conductors that will accompany the pupils from other schools.

Guest Conductor Zellner said "We are very fortunate this year to have obtained Frank Pierson, from Ohio State University, as the guest conductor. We have also obtained the services of Morris Taylor, Al Moffet and the West Virginia University Ensemble for clinics. The West Virginia Ensemble will also perform during the festival."

"The festival," he added, "is not something that has just popped up. We have known since last year, at the Honesdale festival, that we would be the host band to the event this year. Committees have been named and working on the project since late last year. Auditions were held in October and the band members have been working on their music ever since. From East Stroudsburg there will be 23 band members participating in the festival. Most of them are juniors and some are sophomores. There are only a few seniors," he concluded.

From this large band musicians will be selected to attend the Regional Band Festival in Pottsville High School, Pottsville, Pa. This event is scheduled for April 4, 5 and 6.

At Eastburg 6 Years Zellner came to East Stroudsburg High School six years ago to aid Clement Wedemeyer in the music department. Shortly thereafter he became band director.

He entered the music and teaching professions "Through a love of music, I started out with the aim of playing in a professional band and then as time went on I felt the drive to teach others about music. From there I went to college."

Zellner is a graduate of West Chester State Teachers College and holds a masters degree from Lehigh University. He is married to the former Arlene Hechman, of Allentown. He is from Nazareth. The Zellners are the parents of two children.

Iraq To Double Exports Of Oil

NEW YORK (AP)—Petroleum Intelligence Weekly, an international oil trade magazine, said a proposal by the new regime in Iraq to more than double oil exports would raise the country's revenue by $120 million a year.

The magazine said there was little doubt shipments from Port Basrah on the Persian Gulf would be greatly stepped up if the government made good on a suggestion to cut back cargo dues there to former levels.

Record Expansion
NEW YORK (AP)—New York Telephone Co., an operating company of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., spent record $357,362,000 on expansion and service improvement in 1962. The company said expenditures ran $41 million ahead of 1961 outlays.

East Stroudsburg High's Science Fair Judges

LEWIS HASTIE, chairman of East Stroudsburg Area High School science fair, last night announced the judges for the fair. Judging will take place Friday from 5 to 7:30 p.m. with the fair open to the public from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Judges in the senior high school division will be Harold Crossdale and Russell Dotter, chemistry and engineering projects; Frank Buser and Dr. Anthony Bohn, biology projects; Dr. Mary Hunsicker and Justin Feltham, animal experiments; Dr. Mary Hunsicker and Justin Feltham, conservation and landscaping projects; Dr. Meyer Halperin and Robert Sullivan, model projects; Dr. Joseph DeMeo and Thomas Knepp, plant and animal collections; and Dr. J. M. Leitner and Arthur Snee, human biology projects.

Junior High

In the junior high school, the judges will be Sidney Cohen, John Clark and L. J. Morgan, physical science projects; Franklin Tolman, Milton Mowry and Robert Shively, earth and space projects; Dr. Thomas Gendiger and Dr. L. W. Hunsicker, human biology projects; and James Morris and Kenneth Lee, plant and animal projects.

Hastie added that in the junior high division there are 200 projects entered and 158 projects entered in the senior division.

Game Unit Improving Habitat

MONROE and Pike County personnel of the Pennsylvania Game Commission are at present engaged in an intensive wildlife habitat improvement project in the Northeast Division.

Roy Tredler, Northeast Division Supervisor, states that two tremendous bulldozers have been assigned to this division to assist with this work.

The domes are being operated on State Game Lands No. 125 in Lackawanna County near the Clinton section. They had been operated for some time on State Game Lands No. 81 in Luzerne County in the vicinity of Mountain Lake. A number of other State Game Lands in the Northeast Division have been scheduled for the operation. Included among them are State Game Lands No. 127 in Monroe County and Game Lands No. 87 in Luzerne County.

In addition to the bulldozer operation, Tredler states that a number of food and cover crews have been cutting browse on State Game Lands and various Farm Game Projects.

JFK's War II Skirmish 'Confused, Ineffective'

BOSTON (AP)—The World War II naval engagement that saw the then Lt. John F. Kennedy's patrol boat sunk was described Tuesday as a confused and ineffective action.

The director of naval history released a new book yesterday covering the operations of Navy patrol boats (PT boats) in World War II. It covers the exploits of Kennedy.

Capt. Robert J. Bulkley Jr., was the author of the book, entitled "At Close Quarters," and died while his manuscript was on its way to the U.S. Government Printing Office.

The book in no way detracts from previous accounts of Kennedy's heroism. As a matter of fact, the book carries a foreword by President Kennedy.

But it does show he found himself in the middle of a roaring mixup.

MacArthur's Escape
Bulkley's book includes the perilous evacuation of Gen. Douglas MacArthur from the Philippines. He slipped the craft that saved MacArthur from capture.

Bulkley, then a lieutenant, reports the encounter joined by 15 American PT boats Aug. 1-2, 1943, an action he says quickly developed into furious confusion.

The patrol boat squadron was on the prowl to intercept four Japanese destroyers in the Blackett Strait off Kiulombarang.

The book describes the ramming and sinking of Kennedy's PT 109 by the Japanese destroyer Amagiri in this way:

"This was perhaps the most confused and least effectively executed action the PTs had been in. Eight PTs fired 30 torpedos. The only confirmed results are the loss of PT 109 and damage to the Japanese destroyer Amagiri."

Didn't Pass Word

"The Amagiri was not hit by a torpedo, but vibrated so badly after ramming the 109 that she was unable to proceed at high speed."

"The chief fault of the PTs was that they didn't pass the word. Each boat attacked independently, leaving the others to discover the enemy for themselves."

The President obviously retains an affection for PT boats. In his remarks he says: "PT boats filled an important need in World War II in shallow waters, complementing the achievements of greater ships in greater seas. The need for small, fast, versatile, strongly armed vessels does not wane."

Local Support For Public Schools Rises

HARRISBURG (AP) — Local financial support of Pennsylvania's public schools has inched another notch upwards this year.

Although less than one per cent statistically, it means in dollars and cents the local school boards had to raise $37 million of the $54.3 million increase in school revenues this year.

The state picked up about $16.3 million and the federal government about $1 million of the rest.

It is this increasing dollar drain on the local level that is behind the agitation over the statistics of state and local sharing of public school costs.

Percentage-wise, the local taxpayers are providing 55 per cent of the money—principally through property taxes—for their school system and the state—principally through the sales tax—42 per cent. Last year, the percentages were 54.3, local, and 42.7 state.

The federal government picked up the other 3 per cent in each case.

The statistics are from the National Education Association, the national organization of school teachers with which the Pennsylvania State Education Association is associated.

By contrast, the state was paying an increasing share of the cost of supporting public schools during the 1950's, when the basis of state support was being raised annually.

However, the present distribution still weights in favor of the local districts in comparison with those years.

For instance, in 1955-56, local districts paid 59.1 per cent of their own costs and the state 39.1 per cent, and the following year, the local share dropped to 57.8 per cent and the state share rose to 40.4 per cent.

There is consensus on each side that the share should be approximately 50-50, a goal that came close to realization a few years ago, but now seems to be receding.

1,258 Firms Fail In Jan.

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 1,258 businesses failed in January, leaving liabilities of $160.9 million, Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday.

It called the dollar total the highest for any month on record and said it included liabilities of at least $1 million by 22 concerns that failed.

The liabilities include all accounts and notes payable and all obligations held by banks, officers, affiliated companies, suppliers or the government. Assets that might tend to reduce the losses are not included.

Workman Killed In Scaffold Fall

CORTLAND, N.Y. (AP) — One workman was killed and another injured yesterday when a scaffold collapsed and the two plunged to the bottom of a half-million gallon water tank on which they were constructing a roof.

The dead man was identified as Lindsey C. Ellis, about 40, of Media, Pa.

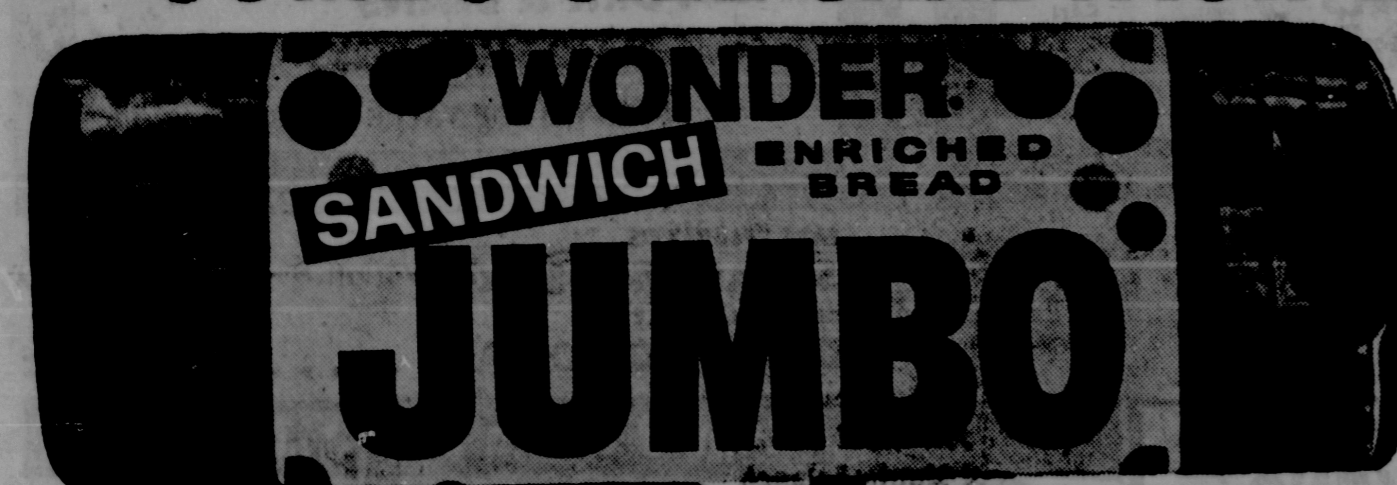

John Edwards of Oil City, Pa. suffered a back injury in the fall and was reported in fair condition at Cortland Memorial Hospital.

The two were employed by the Sharpville Steel Fabricators of Sharpville, Pa., and were working on the tower three miles west of this central New York city.

Support Firm For Pen Argyl Plant Set

PEN ARGYL — Collins & Alkman, a leading supplier of tricot to the intimate apparel and lounge wear trade — through its Bangor Division at Pen Argyl — has announced plans to erect a new, 100,000-square-foot plant, to house added operations of the division, in Farmville, North Carolina.

The Bangor Division's major operation will continue to be headquartered in Pen Argyl, the company said. The new plant, which will operate in support of Pen Argyl, is being erected "to keep pace with the production demands of the division's expanding business," according to C&A executive vice president Robert W. McCullough.

Construction is scheduled to begin "in the near future," Mr. McCullough said, "and we anticipate that the new plant will be operating by October 1."

According to George A. Tunkl, general manager of the Bangor Division, the Farmville plant will provide the division with increased growth-space for additional warping and knitting equipment — as well as for an additional distribution center.

"As a distribution center the new plant will greatly improve our ability to service an expanded southern market," he said.

In a notice to division employees, posted yesterday, the company noted that construction of the new, second plant, would assure a continuance of good working conditions here at Pen Argyl.

"In fact," the company said, "we'll have an improvement in that some over-crowded conditions will be much relieved."

C&A, which has its headquarters in New York, operates six divisions, a subsidiary and an affiliate. In addition to Bangor, the other divisions are: Automotive, at Albemarle and Siler City, N.C.; Cavel, at Cavel, N. C.; Stead & Miller, at Concord, N. C., and Lavonia, Georgia; Yarn, at Norwood and Troy, N. C.; and Mayfair, at Dalton, Georgia and Culver City, California. A subsidiary operates in Canada, and an affiliate is headquartered in Belgium.

The company, founded 120 years ago — 1843 — has built itself into prominence in its competitive industry through highly capable leadership, and product diversification. Busy shipping departments at its 14 manufacturing plants are delivering a wide range of goods: automobile upholstery and carpets, industrial fabrics, fabrics for the transportation industry, lining materials, tricot and woven fabrics for apparel trades, decorative and pile upholstery fabrics, toy plush, pile fabrics for apparel, area and accent rugs, and most types of spun yarns.

Life Insurance Holdings In Area Are $143,073,000

THE average Monroe County family had more protection in the form of life insurance, at the close of 1962, than ever before. For the community as a whole, life insurance holdings totaled $143,073,000.

Data on the amount of insurance in force and on its distribution throughout the country is given for each of the states in the Life Insurance Fact Book.

It shows that the American people, despite the financial safeguards they have been accumulating under Social Security, have been adding to their private coverage, in many cases as a way of providing money for particular future objectives.

At present they hold well over $685 billion of such insurance, or nearly $80 billion more than in the prior year.

Some $44,429,000,000 of it is in force in the State of Pennsylvania, the figures show.

Proportional To Income
Examination of the distribution within the state indicates that life insurance ownership is roughly proportional to income. The amount that the average family has is equal to its entire income, after taxes, covering a period of 23.2 months.

On this basis, applying the average to Monroe County, where the net income per household is approximately $498 per month.

Firestone Moves Today To New Site

FIRESTONE Store, East Stroudsburg, will begin moving today into its new location at 136 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, Wesley Smith, manager, said last night. The new location is in the former Pocono Automobile Co. garage.

Weiden Cramer recently purchased the automobile company and will re-locate the garage to the Stroud Township Shopping Center.

The new Firestone Store, when renovations are completed, will have three new departments. They will consist of brakes, muffler and front alignment. The latter is not scheduled to go into operation until later this spring.

The number of women who do door-to-door selling is now up to 700,000, nearly half the 1.5 million total, according to the National Association of Direct Selling Companies.

The demand for all types of engineers is reflected in a study showing the number of jobholders in this field nationally jumped 61 per cent — from 519,000 to 853,700 — in the 1950s.

A 10 year plan of economic development undertaken by the government of Chile calls for an expansion of 55 per cent in the production of food crops and 60 per cent in livestock by 1970.

Maj. Alton Brown

New Post Engineer At Depot

MAJ. ALTON A. Brown is Tobyhanna Army Depot's new post engineer. He replaces Maj. Joseph McCann, who has been reassigned to Korea.

Major Brown, who recently returned from a three-year tour of duty in France, began his Army career in 1942. During World War II he served in Europe as a platoon sergeant with the 327th Engineer Bn., 102nd Infantry Division.

On duty in Japan at the outbreak of the Korean War, he was among the first Americans to see action in that conflict. While serving with the 7th Infantry Division in Korea, he received a direct battlefield commission as second lieutenant.

Among his many decorations, he holds the Army Commendation Ribbon with Metal Pendant.

A native of Richmond, Me., he is married to the former Doris Badgley of his hometown.

Temperatures Moderate Slowly

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pennsylvania's temperatures moderated slowly late Wednesday in the aftermath of one of the winter's worst cold spells.

The U. S. Weather Bureau said temperatures Thursday morning should be on the plus side of zero throughout the state, in contrast with the sub-zero cold in many communities Tuesday and Wednesday.

Western areas got the worst of the frigid weather, spawned by an Arctic air mass.

St. Marys in Elk County reported a bone-chilling 40 below zero early Wednesday, and other communities in the northwest weren't much better off. Other lows, all below zero, included:

Thrusville 36, Kane 31, Franklin 25, Clearfield 21, Warren and Bradford 20, Butler 17, Philadelphia 12.

Philadelphia had seven above and Harrisburg nine above.

Contract Let For Post Office

PORTLAND — Construction of the new post office at Portland, was further advanced yesterday with the announcement by Postmaster-General J. Edward Day that a contract has been awarded the Portland National Bank of Portland, Pennsylvania to build and lease the building to the Post Office Department.

"We are continuing to build new post offices where they are needed," Mr. Day said, but we are constantly re-assessing our lease construction program to determine whether present buildings can be altered or remodeled to take care of our expanding volume of mail.

The construction program is being concentrated in these areas where the need is urgent and suitable space cannot be obtained except through new construction.

"We now have about 45,000 post office locations throughout the country, handling a volume of 65 billion pieces of mail a year. By 1970, it is expected to rise to 90 billion. It is clear, therefore, that we must redouble our efforts, not only in expanding our capacity but also in devising new postal techniques to meet the demands of our growing population."

Under the Department's Lease Construction program the Portland National Bank will construct the building at West side of Delaware Avenue, 48 feet north of State Street, in the Borough of Portland, and lease it to the Department for ten years, with renewal options running up to twenty years.

The Department's capital investment is limited substantially to postal equipment, while the building remains under private ownership, with the owner paying local real estate taxes.

"This formula," Day said, "utilizes the resources and investment funds of private enterprise for needed postal building. The new post office is expected to be completed on or about October 1, 1963. It will have an interior space of 1,976 sq. ft. with an area of 4,662 sq. ft. for parking and movement of postal vehicles.

IBM Announces New Computer

NEW YORK (AP)—International Business Machines Corp. introduced a new computer which has a printer that operates at almost twice the speed of current models.

The company said the printer can print letters and numbers at 1,100 lines per minute compared with the 600 line a minute rate of current printers.

The new printer uses methods similar to the old models but the metal type faces ride in a channel for maximum quality at higher speed rather than being attached to a steel band as in the old models.

that's the way people feel about their daily newspaper.

Add another staple to food, clothing, shelter, the daily newspaper. It's that basic.

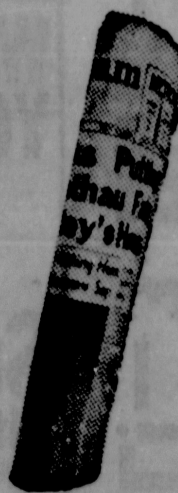

Nearly everyone reads it (99 million people on an average weekday).

They read it thoroughly, page by page (71%)
Would feel lost without it or miss it (79%)
They clip it (editorials 53%, ads 28%), quote from it (65%).

And 99 million consumers wouldn't have it any other way—an ever-changing diet of news and events, freshly packaged, eagerly consumed, thoroughly digested, completely welcome, The Daily Newspaper.

Boehm To Speak At Pen Argyl

PEN ARGYL—PRELIMINARY plans for the dedication of the new Pen Argyl Area Joint High School were approved at a recent meeting of the joint committee.

Dr. Charles Boehm, state superintendent of public instruction, is scheduled as the guest speaker for the program on May 12 at 2 p.m.

At the same time, Dr. William E. Muth, supervising principal, announced that Dr. Gilbert McKellean of Lebanon Valley College, will be the speaker at the school's commencement exercises in June.

Dr. Muth also was authorized to proceed with hiring seven new teachers for the next school year. The board was told teachers are needed for the junior high shop, home economics, business, Spanish and English, junior high principal and teacher, a junior high physical education teacher and an additional band director.

The application of Blaine Strunk for secondary principal in the system was received and turned over to the personnel committee. The board announced further applications for the post are to be sent to Willard Reed, chairman of the committee.

Miss Viva M. Hoppock, in a letter to the board announced her intention to retire at the end of the present school year.

After Horace Reagan, Plainfield Township bus contractor, told of his difficulties in getting bus drivers, the board agreed that off-duty school custodians may be parttime operators of school buses.

Howard Ruth, elementary principal, will be absent from his duties for a month because of illness, the board was told.

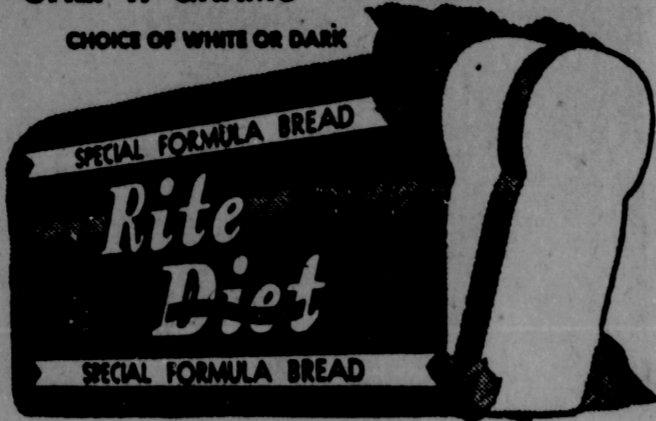

Mrs. Joyce Budge, a newly elected teacher, will assume her duties in the Wind Gap School next Monday.

Permission was given to the Wind Gap PTA to use the auditorium March 11, and the Youth for Christ, Inc., received permission to use a room in the high school for a weekly meeting during the school term.

Allen Jackson, high school principal, reported he had requests from 24 people to form a typing class for adults in the 1963-64 term, and from 17 people for an art class.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

When you're looking for something dismal, it's not hard to find these days. Take automobiles, for instance: for the most part they're mud-spattered and dripping dirty toys like fags from their bumpers like some prehistoric monsters that have been wallowing in the primordial ooze.

When a woman appears downtown with hat and gloves, her friends all ask, "where are you going all dressed up?" So when you see a car in gleaming conditions these days, you start wondering what funeral it's being used for.

But right in the midst of looking for more such baleful observations, at least I had the grace to be ashamed when I got a letter today, reminding me that, while this has been a long hard winter for everybody, it has been even longer and harder for the elderly, the invalid, the ill.

Fear of falling on icy streets and becoming a burden on their family constantly haunts those whose bones are brittle and whose feeling is uncertain; wind and below-freezing cold pose extra hazards for those whose hearts or lungs are a little shaky; and while walking restrictions at the hospital are a wise precaution, they do lengthen the interminable day for patients who may have no immediate family to break the monotony.

"Don't you agree with me that those of us who are able to be up and around at this time are very lucky indeed and that we should all of us: 1. Write a cheerful card to all patients that we know at the hospital; 2. Call or write a stru-in, just to let them know we are thinking about them."

So wrote my correspondent who insisted she didn't want her name used. "Surely you can get into better words, she thought I have in mind," she added. That I doubt. A certain smart-alecky facility with words is no substitute for a sympathetic heart.

So all I can do is to second the opinion humbly and wish I had thought of it myself.

Saylorsburg Club To Conduct Cancer Crusade

Saylorsburg — At the February meeting of the Progressive Woman's Club of Saylorsburg at the Chestnuthill Twp. School made plans to conduct the Cancer Crusade in their area, and also made contributions to three projects:

They gave $5 to the Meals for Millions Foundation; $5 to Radio Free Europe and $5 to the Penny Art Fund.

Sally Ferrebee, guest speaker, read Valentine poems both grave and gay from childhood through age.

Dr. Lura Evans of the health education department faculty at East Stroudsburg State College will speak on "How to Stay Slim" at the March 13 meeting to be held at the Hamilton Twp. School.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Julian Kresge and her committee.

Thinking Day To Be Followed By Fitness Plan

Newfoundland — The annual "Thinking Day," when the Brownies of Troop 252 think out loud about international friendship, was held around the campfire at Southern Wayne Joint School this week under the leadership of Mrs. Emil Wohlfart and Mrs. Phyllis Jones.

The campfire was very realistic this year, even providing smoke when the nail polish applied to the light bulb to make it glow red curled up in black puffs.

Philip and Polly Lindemuth and their mother, Mrs. Grace Lindemuth, who is a member of the troop committee, helped the Brownies sing songs around the fire. They heard the meaning of the various parts of the world flag and discussed the different countries, of which there are over 50, which are associated with the Girl Scout movement. Carried away by enthusiasm, the Brownies named such "foreign countries" as Hawaii, Alaska, and Ohio!

The girls had made a daisy chain, with each daisy designating a flag of a foreign country, and this was displayed. Mrs. Wohlfart showed pictures of the Girl Scout Chalet in Switzerland.

Mrs. Lindemuth received her world pin and membership card. During the business meeting, Marla Stevens, Carol Weiland, Barbara Simons and Patricia Loomis carried out the order of business for the troop.

The girls will now go into their "Physical Fitness" program for the month of March. Committees named to secure the various articles needed for the program were as follows: Debbie Banks and Cindy Haldeman, jumping ropes; Sharon Newcomer and Carol Krieger, balls to bounce; Joanne Nevin, plastic bottles for dumbbells.

Mrs. Wohlfart has informed the troop that they will follow the rigid requirements set up in England for Brownies in physical fitness. For the most part, the Brownies are enthusiastic, with one exception. One member pointed out, "girls don't need muscles!"

Pollyannas Continue Two Projects

Saylorsburg — The Pollyannas of Mount Eaton Church at their meeting at the home of Miss Nellie Kostenbader, decided to continue to sponsor a Korean orphan for another year.

They also decided not only to continue to make cancer dressings but to try to increase their production for the dressings which are in great demand. The group took 4½ dozen to the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Miss Kostenbader presided at the meeting with devotions led by Mrs. Gladys Kresge. Mrs. Sadie Rawley assisted Miss Kostenbader in serving refreshments.

To Keynote World Day Service Here

A young mother who put her Christian training to work in Brazil will be the guest speaker at the World Day of Prayer Services tomorrow at 2 at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church. The service is sponsored by the Monroe County Council of United Church Women with representatives of many member churches taking part in the service.

Keynote speech will be given by Mrs. Paul William Smart on the theme "How Conquerors?"

After her graduation from Hanover College, Ind., where she was active in drama music and the Student Christian Movement, serving as National Moderator of the Westminster Fellowship, and received the "Outstanding Senior" Award, she worked for three years in the office of student work Commission on Ecumenical Missions and Relations of the United Presbyterian Church.

When her husband, a layman, went to Brazil in 1957, working with Presbyterian Publishing House, Nancy became a Fraternal Worker of the Commission and carried out her interest in music, directing choirs and teaching voice. The Smart's home became an unofficial Student Center offering counsel, food and fellowship for students in the area.

They are now living in New Haven, Conn., where her husband is a graduate student at Yale University working on his masters degree in the department of graphic design.

Their two daughters, Anita, 4½ and Sylvia, 3, are bilingual, speaking both English and Portuguese.

Ann George stops me in our Sportswear department to say that she had been among those who stood in line an hour last Friday in New York City's bitter cold to see the Mona Lisa, and had been quite interested in our radio interview of this (Tuesday) morning. Ann had not realized, as few persons do, I presume, that this great painting was not upon canvas but upon a one-inch thick panel of poplar, the native wood of Italy.

This fact was a surprise to me also, but Mr. Jack McGregor, of the administrative staff at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, told me many paintings of the period were upon such panels. Fortunately, the Mona Lisa has not become warped through the years, as is true of so many masterpieces. Another surprise to me was its rather small size . . . I had expected something mammoth. However, my informant stated that at one time the painting had included a large pillar at either side of the lady. These were cut off somewhere along the way, perhaps because they were considered out of fashion.

As you know if you heard our interview, "the lady" travels unframed in a water-proof, fire-proof, specially sealed aluminum container, under heavy guard. Upon arriving at her destination she is re-framed behind one inch bullet-proof glass which was installed in the mid-1950s after a Bolivian had marred her somewhat by throwing a rock at her.

I would love to know how many Monroe Countians have seen her since she arrived at the Metropolitan. Ann Agnes Holdorf of our Credit department, my son and I are the only ones I can name at the moment . . . and all of us thought her charming. I most sincerely thank Lillian Green, Ellen Shuman and Mr. McGregor for their cooperation in arranging our Wyckoff Radio program.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, Dorothy Lisette. Your friends have been calling me to say THIS is the day . . . and we are all wishing you the very best of everything.

Talk about chain reactions! On the mantel near the east staircase to the second floor, I noticed a cluster of little people—wooden dolls from Korea, cute, trim, ornamental, and just the thing for a doll collector. Curious as to their price, I picked up one labeled "Dancing Woman." Inadvertently, she bumped a gentleman doll who promptly fell to the floor, knocking a 1.98 dinner bell from the shelf below. The bell went down with a tremendous gong, and I felt like all kinds of an idiot. Just so the same thing won't happen to you, I'll mention that the gentleman who created the disturbance is 50c; the dancing lady, 75c.

SportScope

by KEN O'BRIEN
Daily Record Sports Editor

The glory always belongs to the winning teams in any sport. So do the newspaper headlines — and nearly all the space. This is true on both the amateur level and the professional.

In many cases, sportswriters on large metropolitan papers and magazines are assigned to cover these championship teams and players. They live with them. And they glorify them.

The losers, however, are left to their merry way — or — in a more way, if you will — all alone. They may swallow their bitter pills in seclusion.

But what is it like, really, to be a player on a team which loses time after time, week after week?

We put this question to several players of the Pleasant Valley basketball team yesterday — and to their coach, Bill Frear. And, very frankly, this reporter left the dressing room of the Brodheadville school with nothing but admiration for this group. They are truly a great bunch of guys. And what they may have lacked in basketball talent, they more than make up for in character. This they got. And make no mistake about it.

Here was a basketball team which won only one game last year. And this same group of lads went through the first 17 games of their schedule this season without tasting a victory. Until this Monday, when they topped Pius X, another team which had beaten only the faculty earlier in the season for their only triumph. The Bears gained their first win that night, 74-57.

Was it any different in your dressing room after the game that night from all the other evenings this season? We queried.

"Sure it was," one player immediately offered. "We even threw Don Rinker into the shower with his uniform on."

This is a gesture often done with a star player or "hero" of a game. Rinker did not mind the premature bath. He had scored 40 points in that victory to set a new gym record. He was a happy young boy. And so were all the others on the team.

There was, however, one unhappy aspect about that particular game — if there can, indeed, be anything unhappy about a team salvaging a victory in their last game of an otherwise winless season.

The game originally was scheduled for Dec. 7, their third game of the season. As Bill Martucci, one of the Pleasant Valley players put it:

"When that game with Pius was postponed I was really sorry about that. If we could have played them on the scheduled date and we had beaten them early in the season, I feel it would have picked us up."

Unfortunately, the game with Pius — the one team the Bears were able to beat — was postponed until the final game of the season.

Lambert Murphy, Rinker and Martucci were the three players we talked to. We asked for their story — how it felt to be a loser, how it affected them, how they reacted. They answered the blunt questions with bluntness. And it adds up to a story of guts. They admitted it wasn't easy, but they stuck it out — all the way.

We'll tell them tell it to you as they told it to us:

Rinker: "There's a big difference in playing with a winning team than with a loser, especially with the fans and the students in the school. When you lose, you hear about it. . . . It wouldn't be so bad if you lose a few games, but when it gets to 13 or 14, people start wondering what's wrong."

Martucci: "People start asking you all the time, 'What do you guys do at practice, anyway?'"

Murphy: "They picked on me a lot because I got a hot temper. . . . We lost a few tough games — Jim Thorpe, Pocono Mountain, Summit Hill, Coaldale and Nesquehoning."

Rinker: "You go to a diner someplace and get greeted with silence. . . ."

Martucci: "I hate to go to a barber shop, anymore."

Coach Frear: "We were outclassed all the way, and class will tell every time. Several games were very close. . . . Our kids never quit, I'll say that for them. They went out on the court and figured, 'What have we got to lose,' and they took that attitude with them and in this way we at least gained something through the sport."

"Not one player quit once the season started. And they didn't miss practice."

"During the middle of the season we developed a philosophy of just enjoying the game — and there wasn't any more shouting from the coach."

But the fine attitude of the whole team was perhaps best summed by Martucci, who noted:

"One thing, by continually losing we developed something like a brotherhood or a fraternity with our team. If somebody picked on one of the players in school, we would all stick up for him. We stuck together all the way."

This, then, is the story of the Pleasant Valley basketball team. It's the story of a loser. And it is told by players who have shown more guts and character than many, many others who have been glorified on champion teams.

In one way, this is the story of true champions.

For Darby, Uniontown

Moment Of Truth Approaches Fast

By DAVE LEHERR

HARRISBURG (AP)—The moment of truth is fast approaching for Uniontown and Darby in their bids to become the first two teams ever to repeat as the Class A and B schoolboy basketball champions in the same year.

Uniontown, the defending A champ, faces its first playoff test in the WPIAL next Monday against the winner of Friday night's Norwin-Brownsville battle. The Red Raiders are riding a 37-game winning streak and will be tough to beat.

Also Impressive

Equally as impressive are the Darby Rams, winners of Class B honors last year, and undefeated in 45 straight games.

The Rams clash with Upper Dublin March 6 in their first District One playoff contest at Norristown.

Last year's Class B runnerup, Mercer, also looks like a contender again, boasting a 19-3 record and another Mercer County championship.

The Mustangs take on their first District 10 rival March 8 at Allegheny College.

Thorpe vs. Copley

Jim Thorpe, the 1962 Class C winner, takes on Copley Friday night at Allentown for District 11 honors.

The intra-district action is expected to wind up March 10. After that it will be the state's finest to play off for the Class A, B and C championships.

Class A competition will find District One meeting District 11, 2 talking on 4, 5 against 6 and 9 tangling with 10 in first round play. Districts 3, 7 and 8 get byes.

First round action in the Class B inter-district playoffs match District 2 against 4, 3 against 1, 5 against 6 and 9 against 10 with 1, 7 and 12 getting byes.

In Class C, District 1 and 3, 4 and 12, 5 and 6 and 9 and 10 will meet in first round action with 2 and 11 getting byes.

Little Guys Star

Little guys apparently dominated the scholastic scoring race in Pennsylvania this year. First there was Rick Sonneborn, 5-11 of West Greene, and Joe Lalli, 5-8 of Dunmore.

Also impressive are the Darby Rams, winners of Class B honors last year, and undefeated in 45 straight games.

The Rams clash with Upper Dublin March 6 in their first District One playoff contest at Norristown.

Last year's Class B runnerup, Mercer, also looks like a contender again, boasting a 19-3 record and another Mercer County championship.

The Mustangs take on their first District 10 rival March 8 at Allegheny College.

Thorpe vs. Copley

Jim Thorpe, the 1962 Class C winner, takes on Copley Friday night at Allentown for District 11 honors.

The intra-district action is expected to wind up March 10. After that it will be the state's finest to play off for the Class A, B and C championships.

Class A competition will find District One meeting District 11, 2 talking on 4, 5 against 6 and 9 tangling with 10 in first round play. Districts 3, 7 and 8 get byes.

First round action in the Class B inter-district playoffs match District 2 against 4, 3 against 1, 5 against 6 and 9 against 10 with 1, 7 and 12 getting byes.

In Class C, District 1 and 3, 4 and 12, 5 and 6 and 9 and 10 will

ESSC Cagers Win Seventh

RUTHERFORD, N. J. — Coach Mort Hochheiser's East Stroudsburg State College's basketball Warriors should play more games on Jersey soil.

They made their third trip of the season across the Delaware yesterday and picked on Fairleigh-Dickinson on an easy 80-52 victory, gaining their second win in the Garden State. In previous trips to Jersey, the Warriors lost to Montclair State but trimmed Trenton for a .666 winning percentage over the border.

The triumph was the seventh of the campaign for the ESSC cagers against 12 losses.

Murphy Hits 22

John Murphy paced the Warrior attack with 22 points on 11 fielders, while Will Peifley followed with 15 and Landis with 14.

In all, nine Warrior players hit the scoring column.

Fairleigh-Dickinson struck first, but East Stroudsburg quickly zipped in front and held onto their lead all the way. The Warriors held a 39-30 halftime advantage, and maintained their scoring pace throughout the second half while the Jerseyites were held to a meager 22 points.

There were few fouls in the contest—East Stroudsburg being charged with 14, and Fairleigh-Dickinson with only nine. The Warriors hit on only six of 33 attempts from the foul line, while the F-D squad connected on 12 of 19.

In the JV contest, East Stroudsburg won its 14th contest against only two setbacks, 88-40.

Plagued By Problems

Gary Geiger Faces A Critical Question

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

GARY GEIGER, whose problem-plagued baseball career contains all the ingredients for a radio soap opera, has survived a collapsed lung and a bleeding ulcer in the last two years, and now faces this critical question:

Can a young, frail outfielder from the little town of Sand Ridge, Ill., find happiness while playing for the Boston Red Sox?

That's the exact position the 25-year-old left-handed batter finds himself in today after revealing that the stomach trouble he suffered last season was actually a bleeding ulcer.

Geiger, whose 160 pounds stretches somewhat thinly over a 6-foot-1 frame, was struck down at one point in 1962 for eight days. He required six blood transfusions and lost 18 pounds. Now, on doctors' orders, he must either relax or undergo an operation.

Battling to grab an outfield berth over Carl Yastrzemski, Lu Clinton or Roman Mejias, Geiger said at the Red Sox camp Tuesday that the stomach disorder was diagnosed as a bleeding ulcer by his hometown doctor after the 1962 campaign in which he wound up hitting .249.

"I have been on a diet ever since," Geiger said. "The doctor tells me I can play baseball, but I mustn't get tense. I must relax and no matter how things go—I must not worry or get upset."

Large Order
That's a large order, but if he succeeds, Geiger is sure to fit in with Boston plans somewhere. The former pitcher proved he could hit major league hurling in 1960 when he batted .302 with nine homers and 33 runs batted in before his lung collapsed.

Kansas City first baseman Norm Siebern also has a problem. He might spend the season as an insurance agent.

So says Athletics President Charles Finley, who revealed the 308 hitter has turned down three contracts offers, each calling for more money.

May Be Saleman
"Siebern asked me what I would do if he refused to sign," Finley said, "I told him in that case I would take him on for the year as an insurance salesman for me."

Siebern has shown no inclination to work for Finley in either capacity.

Trouble comes in small packages department:
Chicago Cubs third baseman Ron Santo said he'll miss the first few days of spring training. Santo broke a blood vessel on the side of his right hand when he struck the floor while wrestling with his young son.

Sanford Signs
San Francisco's Jack Sanford, who last week criticized the National League champion Giants for holding the team's pitching pattern against him in salary negotiations, agreed to terms for an estimated $37,500.

A 24-game winner, Sanford said that he pitched the last week of the pennant scramble with a 2-inch cut on his heel from an operation for removal of an abscess. He also said he completed only 13 games because he had been told to pitch hard and let the bullpen worry about finishing up.

Cycles On Ice Set For Naomi

FOR THE seventh consecutive year Naomi Lake is the scene for some rip-roaring motor sports. As the season progresses into its ninth week of sports car racing an innovation will be added to the regular attraction. This Sunday motorcycles will appear on the lake for the first time.

While the sports cars and economy compacts use only stock summer tires, the boys with bikes will have them outfitted with spikes allowing phenomenal speeds to be reached on the plowed snow course. They will be running in separate events but the spectacle of contrast will remain an exciting factor for the onlooker.

Tensions Mount

As the regular sports car season advances, tensions mount higher and higher for this has been a year of remarkably close competition.

Jack Van Wetering, Gillette, N.J., Gil Tiltus, Oxford, N.J., and Brian Hunt, Sussex, N.J., have not strayed from a nine point range as they switch first, second and third position in the contest for seasonal champion.

Titus now leads with 279 points to the others' 271 apiece. These two Porschas and Tiltus' MGA have presented fans with the breathtaking moments though they have received stiff competition from many of the other hundred drivers.

The next driver is SAAB pilot Ken Gee, Bethlehem, 1962 Points Champ. He leads in the competition for top SAAB driver, but there again is a close race involving Wayne Koller of Harrisburg, and Joe Christ of Bethlehem. Incidentally, seventh place points position is currently held by

Garden State Sets Purses Of $255,000

CHERRY HILL, N.J. — Garden State Park will offer stakes horses $255,000 prize money, and distribute an estimated $33,000 a day in overnight purse money for the spring meet starting Saturday, April 27.

General Manager Joseph M. McCrane Jr., in making the announcement, said that present dates call for "no racing on Mondays" but that a plan is being proposed whereby New Jersey would get 19 additional racing dates, which means Garden State Park would run on Mondays. The State will make its decision shortly.

Heading the spring stakes program is the Memorial Day classic, the $100,000 added Jersey Derby, which was first run in 1964 and is America's oldest Derby.

Garden State Park traditionally closes its spring meet on May 30 and for the last three years this race has produced the Belmont winner. Last year it was a memorable three home drive down the stretch with Cinnamon Satan, Jaipur and Admiral's Voyage battling noses apart all the way through the stretch.

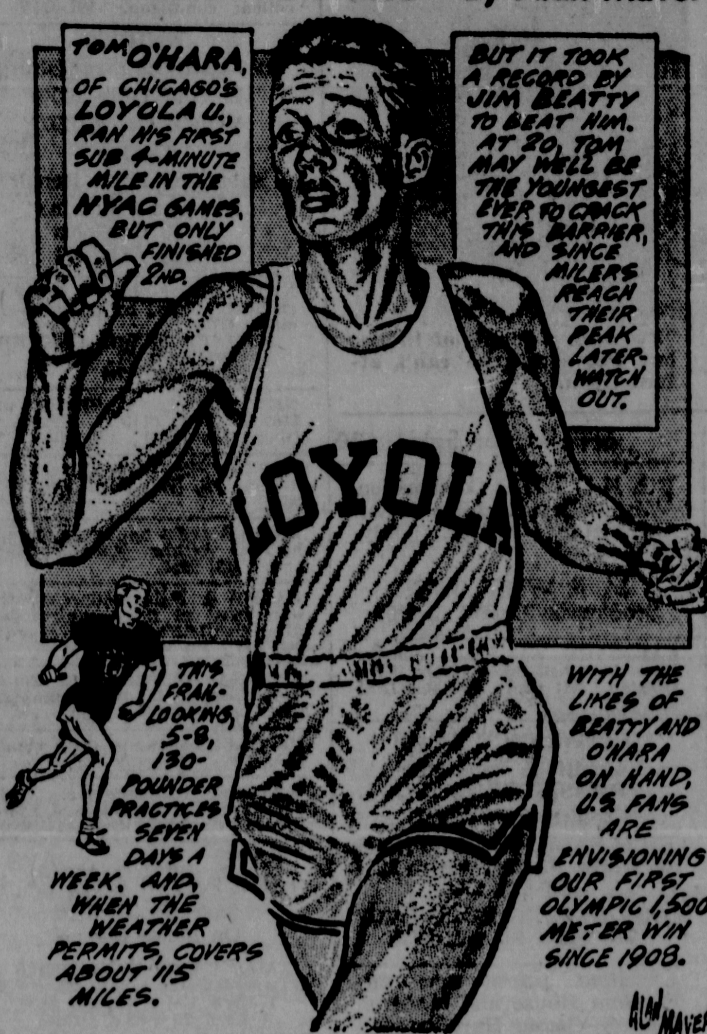

The 1961 two-year-old champion, Cinnamon Satan, finished a nose in front but was disqualified and the eventual three-year-old champion of 1962, Jaipur, was declared the winner. This courageous colt went on to carry George D. Walenski's colors to victory in the coveted Belmont a few weeks later, just as Sherluck and Celtic Ash had the two previous years.

The opening day feature will spotlight the sprinters in the running of the Delaware Valley Stakes. This is a $25,000 added event for 3-year-olds which was won last year by Nassau Hall over the crack sprinter Green Ticket.

If Tradition Holds Up

Lock Haven Favored In PSCAC Tourney

JOHNSTOWN, PA.—Lock Haven should win the 20th annual Pennsylvania State Colleges wrestling tournament Friday and Saturday at Shippensburg.

That is, if tournament runs true to a two-year pattern. The loser of the annual dual match between Bloomsburg and Lock Haven has won the tournament.

Last year Lock Haven defeated Bloomsburg in their dual meet and the latter went on to win the tournament. In 1961 Bloomsburg won the dual meet and Lock Haven won the tournament. Last Saturday Bloomsburg defeated Lock Haven, 18-9.

The hotbed of PSCAC and PIAA wrestling is in north-central Pennsylvania, but other PSC teams are making strides to end this domination.

Mat Prominence

Take the case of Frank Lignelli, wrestling coach at Clarion State. In four short years since he introduced the most ancient of sports at Clarion, Lignelli has brought his Golden Eagles from wrestling obscurity to wrestling prominence.

Oh, Clarion hasn't reached the wrestling pinnacle set by Lock Haven and Bloomsburg, national champions. But Clarion's wrestling prowess is a force to be recognized currently and in the near future.

Clarion boasts of 10 victories against a lone defeat with three undefeated wrestlers and Lignelli loses only one grappler by graduation.

Two Undefeated

Dave Caslow (130) and Jim Cignetti (123) are undefeated with 12 and 11 wins respectively, while Gerry Kemp (137) has five straight wins. Caslow has lost only one match in two years.

Four years ago when Lignelli issued a call for wrestlers only 14 boys showed up. Clarion showed a 4-3 record for these first two years, then had an 8-2 record last year and currently is enjoying a fabulous 10-1 record.

Corman Coming

Another coach who'll be heard from soon is Bill Corman of Shippensburg who produced a 5-3-1 record this year, his sixth winning season in the seven years Shippensburg has been in the wrestling game.

Besides Clarion's three undefeated wrestlers, there will be eight other grapplers with perfect season's records competing in this weekend's tournament at Shippensburg. Bill Carson, defending heavyweight champion from Bloomsburg, shares top honors along with Clarion's Caslow in the unbeaten ranks with 12 wins. After Cignetti's 11 straight comes Bob Guzzo of East Stroudsburg State College who had nine wins before last night's bout.

Losers Of One

Losers of only one match this season include Fred Powell (130) of Lock Haven (he lost to Guzzo),

He Would Rather Wear No. 13

Seven Not Lucky For Phil's Hoak

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Seven may be a lucky number to most people but not to Don Hoak, the Philadelphia Phillies new third baseman.

Hoak, obtained the past winter from Pittsburgh, would rather wear No. 13, hold a black cat in the dugout or walk under a ladder enroute to his position. Anything but wear No. 7 on his uniform back.

General Manager John Quinn found Hoak easy to sign, but this uniform number bit, that's something else again.

Hoak and his wife, singer Jill Corey, were guests on a television show in Pittsburgh last month, when a surprise gift, the producers unfurled Hoak's new red striped Phillies' uniform. It fitted him nicely and he was pleased as the audience applauded.

Then, Hoak noted the No. 7 on the back. He couldn't wait to get to a telephone and call Russ (Unk) Henry, the Phillies clubhouse custodian.

"Hey Unk," Hoak said to Russell, "Did you send me the wrong uniform to Pittsburgh? This one has seven on its back." Russell replied, "No mistake.

That's it. You're now the owner of Phillies uniform No. 7. Wear it proudly and well."

Hoak groaned, "Oh, no," and hung up.

Hoak told his wife he just would not wear No. 7.

The third baseman waited until reporting here for spring training to explain to Russell why he couldn't wear No. 7.

"I'm not superstitious," he said, "but 14 years ago I reported to Greenville of the Sally League. They handed me No. 7. I suffered a wound that took 30 stitches in my leg, two broken fingers and was beamed three times. I also hit .231." For the next eight years he wore a uniform number other than No. 7, but in 1955 landed with the Chicago Cubs who handed him the "lucky" digit.

Berra Has New Outlook As Coach

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—After 16 years as a star catcher and outfielder with the New York Yankees, Yogi Berra has a new outlook—as first base coach. He figures it will be interesting and he also expects to take a lot of riding from opposing bench jockeys.

"They'll be on me, all right," the 37-year-old character said with a grin as he slapped fungo grounders to the infielders at the club's training site. "I expect it, particularly in Boston and Kansas City. There are the only two parks where the home team uses the first base dugout. Both of those benches are very close to the field."

"Ed Short (general manager of the Chicago White Sox) told me that his club is going to get on me. He said he wishes their bench was in the first base side for that reason but he promised I would hear them from third base, anyway."

Berra intends to use the spring training games in Florida as a laboratory. The Yankees play 30.

WHEN Willie Mays came up to the Giants in 1951, Tommy Heath, his manager at Minneapolis, advised the Giants that "Mays will cover center field like a tent."

Plan Spring Planting Now

By George Abraham
EARLY TOMATOES: It's not too early to talk about getting ripe tomatoes way ahead of your neighbors. How do you go about doing it?

In the first place, you must start with early varieties. There are early, mid-season and late tomatoes. If you plant a late variety in a region where frosts come early, you'll have nothing but green tomatoes at coming time. So start out with an early tomato.

Also use "potted" tomatoes, suggested here a couple weeks ago. These are planted in the garden, pot and all, without suffering any check of growth.

To produce potted tomatoes, start seed indoors anytime now, transplant the young seedlings when an inch or two high, using the peat pots available in garden stores. Grow them in a bright window, and as cool as possible. They'll be tall and spindly at planting time, and will have blossoms plus small fruit. Don't worry about this because such plants are advanced and will continue to grow uninterrupted once you set them out and water them with a booster solution.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Stroudsburg: "Early last December I filled two 6 inch pots with soil obtained from the bottom of our outside incinerator. Into each pot I stuck a half dozen rose bush cuttings, watered each pot and placed a 10-inch plastic tent over them. In the last few days I've noticed sprouts have developed on the cuttings, and some turn brown after forming. What should I do with the cuttings? Is it true that the plants won't produce flowers when started from cuttings?"
It's amazing that the cuttings survived the treatment you gave them. Ashes from an incinerator contain sulfides and other materials which are apt to be toxic to tender cuttings. Browning of the leaves might possibly be due to burning from the ashes.
I'd remove the cuttings and insert them in a sand-peat mixture, since the cuttings may or may not have roots on them. If roots are present, pot them up in 4 inch pots, using a one-third sand, one-third peat and one-third loam mixture. Grow them in a bright window, and when spring comes set them out in the garden.
Cuttings which survive will produce flowers the same color as the parent plant. Many gardeners start their own rose plants from slips taken from patented plants. Technically, this is against the law, but I've never heard of any gardener going to jail for doing it.
G. B. of Marshall's Creek: "I enjoy growing narcissus bulbs indoors each winter. After blooming, I would discard the bulbs. Could these bulbs be saved and planted outdoors?"
Yes, you could plant them outside in a permanent spot. It may take a year or two before they would bloom again.

STONE, Mrs. Emma of East Stroudsburg, Feb. 25, aged 82. Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to attend funeral services Thursday, Feb. 28 at 3 p.m. from the Lanterman Funeral Home. Interment in the Prospect Cemetery. No viewing. CLARK

Public Notices

NOTICE
The East Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools Committee will receive sealed bids to furnish one 1963-64, four wheel drive truck with snowplow attached.
Specifications, terms and conditions may be secured at the office of the secretary located in the High School, North Courtland Street, East Stroudsburg, Pa.
All bids to be placed in a sealed envelope, plainly marked "Bid for Truck" and must be in the hands of the secretary on or before March 13, 1963, 4:00 P.M., E.S.T.
Bids will be opened at a public hearing to be held at the High School, North Courtland Street, East Stroudsburg, Pa., on March 13, 1963, 8:00 P.M.
The Committee reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any technicalities or informality for the best interest of the district.
By order of the Board of Directors of the East Stroudsburg Area Joint Schools Committee:
PAUL E. NAUMAN, President
T. B. COURTRIGHT, Secretary

THE PROPOSED annual budget for 1963 has been prepared and will be available for public inspection at the Secretary's home until March 1, 1963, after which the same will be adopted.
PARADISE TOWNSHIP SUPERVISORS
Carl Hamblin, Sec.

Ordinance No. 5, dated 1961, levying a per capita tax of $5.00 on residents of Pocono Township has been reenacted for the year of 1963 by Pocono Township Supervisors.
WILLIAM CLUGSTON, Secretary

Pocono Township Supervisors will meet at the First and Third Tuesday of each month at 7:30 P.M. D. S. E. Stroudsburg, Pa.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Stroudsburg: "Early last December I filled two 6 inch pots with soil obtained from the bottom of our outside incinerator. Into each pot I stuck a half dozen rose bush cuttings, watered each pot and placed a 10-inch plastic tent over them. In the last few days I've noticed sprouts have developed on the cuttings, and some turn brown after forming. What should I do with the cuttings? Is it true that the plants won't produce flowers when started from cuttings?"
It's amazing that the cuttings survived the treatment you gave them. Ashes from an incinerator contain sulfides and other materials which are apt to be toxic to tender cuttings. Browning of the leaves might possibly be due to burning from the ashes.
I'd remove the cuttings and insert them in a sand-peat mixture, since the cuttings may or may not have roots on them. If roots are present, pot them up in 4 inch pots, using a one-third sand, one-third peat and one-third loam mixture. Grow them in a bright window, and when spring comes set them out in the garden.
Cuttings which survive will produce flowers the same color as the parent plant. Many gardeners start their own rose plants from slips taken from patented plants. Technically, this is against the law, but I've never heard of any gardener going to jail for doing it.
G. B. of Marshall's Creek: "I enjoy growing narcissus bulbs indoors each winter. After blooming, I would discard the bulbs. Could these bulbs be saved and planted outdoors?"
Yes, you could plant them outside in a permanent spot. It may take a year or two before they would bloom again.
